Great Harlequin Category RomanceVon Tina EThirty-five-year-old Evie Vaughn is a financially struggling, widowed mother of three who works as a teacher and Big League baseball coach. She has wanted to coach the high school boys varsity baseball team for years now, but has had obstacle after obstacle thrown into her path because of her gender. The Oak Grove school board finally relents, however, and agrees to let her take on the position, so long as Evie proves herself capable. In order to do so, Evie's Big League team has to win the championship this year. Thirty-six-year-old Joe Scalotta is a divorced, retired football player who moves to Oak Grove, Iowa to get out of the big city and raise his daughter in a small town. He's made a lot of mistakes in his life, including not being there for Toni while she was growing up. Now Toni's sixteen, her mother is dead, and Joe finds himself wanting to be a better dad and friend to his adolescent daughter. Joe also realizes that he wants to remarry and experience the things he'd never gotten to experience when Toni was a baby. When Joe meets Toni's baseball coach Evie, the physical attraction between them is mutual and instantaneous. Neither of them, however, believes that the other is the type of person they are looking for in a relationship. Evie has sworn to never again involve herself with a hunky man looking for a good time, and she's read enough in the papers about Joe "Wildman" Scalotta to surmise that he's everything she doesn't need. Joe wants nothing to do with an overly opinionated, domineering career woman whose more interested in her next big promotion than in him. The problem is, their minds might want them apart but their hearts and bodies don't. Evie and Joe just can't stop thinking about each other...I was pleasantly surprised with the depth of Ms. Handeland's characters. They were complex, three-dimensional people who had their good qualities and bad, their personal failures as well as their triumphs. In other words, they were real people that real women readers can relate to. I'd read another book by this author without hesitation.0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Super romance Von Ein Kunde In Newsome, Iowa, Oak Grove High School physical education teacher Evie Vaughn has raised three boys by herself ever since her husband Ray died six years ago. Worried about earning money to send her children to college, Evie wants to become a varsity coach to supplement her income. Evie's hopes to become a coach takes a dive when former football star Joe Scalotta accompanied by his teenage daughter moves into town. Joe is immediately attracted to Evie, who feels the same way. However, she refuses to fall into the same trap she suffered with her deceased spouse. No way will Evie ever allow a charming handsome hunk to get inside her heart because it took six long years to overcome the damage that superficial Ray caused to Evie and their kids. Throw on top of that the angst and love between their teenage children. Still her heart keeps beating stronger whenever she is near Joe. MOTHER OF THE YEAR is an entertaining contemporary romance that focuses on family relationships. The enjoyable story line demonstrates the resiliency of people to rebound from bad relationships. The lead couple is an intriguing duo and their four (make that five) children add to the chaos and fun of the tale. Lori Handeland has written an amusing romp with serious undertones that will provide pleasure to sub-genre fans. Harriet Klausner 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Please do more research Von Snoopyfan While the premise of the romance, 2 single parents fighting for the same job, was nice I wish the author would do a bit more research on the state of Iowa before she uses it for a setting. Iowans do not go to bed after the 9 o'clock news. The local news is at 10pm. The streets aren't rolled up after the news is over. Yes, farmers work long hours, but they do managed to stay up for the 10 o'clock news. Two opposing views of the town of Newsome are given. One is a small rural town. In the next breath it is large enough for a community college and a tv station? Come on, please paint a realistic picture here. I'd challenge the author to show me a place like this, not just in Iowa, but anywhere in the country. Coaches for athletic teams aren't chosen by a town meeting. Iowa has an excellent educational system, that extends down to the athletic programs. I feel a story that had such potential was wasted by an old, distorted view of the people and places of Iowa.

Kurzbeschreibung From bestselling author Lori Handeland, a collection of contemporary romances. Humor with heart! After the death of her husband, Evie Vaughn realizes her dream of becoming a high school teacher. She and her three sons move to Oak Grove, Iowa and become part of the community. Evie would like nothing better than to be able to send her boys to college, but to do so she needs to land the coveted position of high school baseball coach. She's qualified. She's almost got the job in her grasp. Then Joe Scalotta comes to town. The "Iceman," as Joe was known on the football field, has just been hired as the football coach for the local community college. He's also received full custody of his teenage daughter after he mother's recent death. Oak Grove is supposed to be a new start for them both. When Joe is offered Evie's job merely on the basis of his notoriety sparks fly, and Evie proposes a test. Whoever's team wins the Big League Baseball championship over the summer wins the job. Though Joe doesn't want her job, he does want to keep an eye on the lovely Mrs. Vaughn. Especially since his daughter, Toni, has been assigned to Evie's team as her newest pitcher. When Joe discovers himself hornswoggled into coaching Evie's twin terror sons in T-ball and his daughter falls in love with her catcher, Evie's oldest son, the two of them wind up spending more time together than apart. And not just because of the children. Kurzbeschreibung From bestselling author Lori Handeland, a collection of contemporary romances. Humor with heart!
