have done with a little more passion Von Katharina Gerlach (Indie Autorin) This is a very interesting story about the fight between good and evil forces. I liked the story very much. The characters are believable, the setting well described and the plot thickens more with every page you turn. The romance felt a little lacking though. With a word like "passion" in the title, I would have expected there to be more and deeper emotions to (at least the main) characters shown in a new and interesting way. However, the emotions were just like in any other romance novel I read. That's not a bad thing, it's just not what I had hoped for. All in all, a very satisfying read and an author where I'll surely look for more books.

Kurzbeschreibung Unless Stacy Macken can stave off her creditors, she may lose her renowned history center. Yet she knows in her heart that the center is sacred and what a catastrophe losing it would be. How much of a catastrophe, she hasn't a clue. Until Aaron Fielding arrives with his tales of magical guardians and the Tuatha d Danann, sworn warriors from Celtic legend who protect humanity from a wicked enemy seeking their destruction. Is the end of the world imminent? What can she, a modern woman and her warrior lover, possibly have to offer when a long-prophesied druidic mythic battle explodes around them? Bonus: Includes brand new flash fiction piece, "About A Warrior"
