Lustige Lesestunden fr alle, die Bridget Jones und Oreo-Kekse mgen!Von LaberLili[Vorab: Dieses eBook hatte ich im Vorfeld der Verffentlichung bereits kostenfrei zu Rezensionszwecken von der Autorin erhalten.]"Post-Traumatic Brazilian Wax Syndrome" wandelt auf den Spuren von Bridget Jones's Diary (Bridget Jones series), ohne die von Helen Fielding ausgestalteten Fustapfen 1:1 nachzulaufen, sprich: Die Geschichte ist grundstzlich anders, aber der Humor ist sehr hnlich. Wer keine "Schokolade zum Frhstck" mochte, wird nun auch diesen Roman Tamara Lyons wohl nicht mgen, wer hingegen ganz verliebt in das Tagebuch der Bridget Jones war, den knnte ganz bestimmt auch das "Post-Traumatic Brazilian Wax Syndrome" ins Schwrmn bringen. Zumindest meinen Humor hat dieses eBook nun sehr gut getroffen, ich hatte unglaublichen Spa beim Lesen, wenn es mich auch letztlich ein wenig genervt hat, wie perfekt manch weitere Figur, insbesondere das mnliche Gegenstck zur Protagonistin, dargestellt wurde. Wiederum gefallen hat mir allerdings, dass hier alle Charaktere doch sehr unterschiedlich waren und nicht zu einem Einheitsbrei verschwommen, wo jeder mit jedem verwechselt werden konnte. Vielleicht sollte auch nicht unerwhnt bleiben, dass Bristow Sparks, Hauptfigur und Erzherin der Geschichte, eine nahezu manische Oreo-Obsession verfolgt: Wer jene Kekse ganz grauenvoll findet, den wird die Geschichte wohl hufig ins Schtteln geraten lassen. Wer sich vorstellen knnte, sich nur von Oreo-Keksen ernhren zu knnen, wird hingegen vermutlich sehr mit Bristow mitfhlen knnen. ;) Ich kann diese Lektre jedenfalls nur weiterempfehlen, seit wirklich langer Zeit habe ich whrend des Lesens nicht so sehr lachen und schmunzeln mssen wie bei der Lektre derselben!

Kurzbeschreibung Bristow Sparks, an interior designer in Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, has just landed the contract of a lifetime, working for Cherry Wyeland, volatile reality star and CEO of Wine-A-Lot. Designing for a crazy person is an around-the-clock commitment. It frays Bristows nerves and forces her to compromise in unimaginable ways, but, given that the finished product will be featured on The Decorating Network, she must succeed. While her professional life is hot, her personal life is barely room temperature. After surviving the relentless media spotlight because of a personal tragedy and a traitorous ex-boyfriend, Bristow flies so far under the radar she cant even be detected. A homebody to the core, she binges on episodes of the Showtime series, Dexter, lives in sweatpants, and is addicted to exercise and Oreos. As for relationships? She has fallen hard and fast for witty and adventurous Jack Hoffmann. However, after their disastrous first date where Bristow collided with a park bench among other mortifying mishaps, they are unfortunately just friends. At least theres one male sharing her bed, even if its only Vegas, her theatrical golden retriever. For her twenty-ninth birthday, Bristow goes out of her comfort zone and gets a makeover at an elite spa. Post-Brazilian wax and in excruciating pain, Bristow realizes that shes been in a post-traumatic state for years. She vows to start taking risks again. When she finally goes after what and whom she wants, no matter the cost, tragedy strikes again . . .
