Not convincing Von Barbara Tsipouras It takes some time to get into the flow of this novel and to get to know the different characters. Although the story is set in 2055 it seems as if nothing has changed at all, the same TV, the same cars, phones,...the same prejudices. (When I look back 30 years a lot has changed!)The author discribes the characters throughout the whole novel in a strange way: the twenty-six-year old comedian or the Muslim photographer, as if he wants to avoid "he" or "she" or call them by their names.The premise is interesting and promisses conflict. Six very different persons with personal secrets in a TV show living together in a loft. The difference to "Big Brother" is that they can leave the loft and continue their normal jobs.Of course the situation escalades.There is some suspense, some interesting friendships, but the surprising end didn't convince me.0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Sleepless thanks to Shots Fired In The Melting PotVon Vanessa HoffmannI received this novel via gift coupon. This was quite a sublime novel introducing a whole variety of characters that couldn't be more different and some dark pasts. Some parts will make you smile, some might make you cry. Either way, these shots fired will definitely leave their marks on you. I decided to give this novel very good 3, 5 stars for a good thriller that was to me personally, however, a little confusing thanks to the whole bunch of characters. Putting that personal part aside, it is ingeniously written and offers a lot of thrill. It is suspenseful and we even get some romance in it. I wasn't able to close my eyes later, because the plot kept me thinking for a while. A great and unique idea!3.5 very good stars!

Words can be the fodder of simplistic doldrums or an elaborate cocktail of Worcestershire goodness. I welcome readers to join my journeys through dark and unknown worlds featuring characters with whom we'd all like to spend time in bed. At any given moment in your life, you will yearn for sex, food, sleep, or even safety. But when all your primal needs are met, you'll find yourself wanting more. Perhaps you're a budding intellectual or malevolent hipster. Maybe you're a single mother who fights fires for a living. You could also be a mortician, politician, or one who holds a PhD. in the study of crustaceans. The fact is that I am as interested in you as you in me. I know the quirky secrets that lie dormant in your emboldened minds. You want an experience that is a cut above everything else. Your mind needs something fresh and new to enjoy with the carelessness of a child in the wilderness. So, I invite you to come and explore these depths of human emotion and strife with me. Think of me as a tiger who would have otherwise frozen to death without the warmth of your affection. And when you leave feedback, tell me in three to five words: your core philosophy, expertise, and dream for the world. Much love and casual intelligence, -The Crimson Clover.
